

You are a forensic psychologist. This list of words is the only evidence you have to solve the thought process of someone - they will give you a real clue as to what is going on in that person's mind at an important moment of their life.

Annotate the sheet with your answers to the following questions:

- What is this person thinking about?
- What are their hopes and fears?
- What has just happened to them?
- What is going to happen?

You must:

- relate all your ideas to the list of words
- make all connections and ideas explicit
- record why you have made the connections you have.
